

Muriel Eddowes

Until I retired, I was a senior lecturer in Management Science at Sheffield Hallam University. I held a variety of roles during my 30 year career in higher education but focussed mainly on course and module development, course management and student support in the areas of business, finance and management.

I have significant experience of school governance in inner city Sheffield, most recently at a large primary school with a similar profile to Abbeyfield.